

Tenancy agreement

Made by the Norwegian Consumer Council

This agreement and the Tenancy Act (husleieloven) regulate the Tenant's and the Lessor's rights and obligations in the tenancy. A rental agreement must be drawn up in writing.

You can fill out the contract electronically or on print. Print at least two copies of the contract and sign by the landlord (s) and tenant (s).

The Tenancy Act takes precedence over any contractual terms and conditions. No less favourable terms to the tenant can be agreed upon.

If you fill out the contract electronically, you may sign with Bank-ID in Posten's solution for e-signing.

The notification may be sent at the earliest on the due date, cf. the Enforcement Act §13-2, section three, litera a. The notification shall state that eviction proceedings will be instigated if the claim is not met and that eviction can be avoided if the rental payment is paid in full, in addition to any interest due, before eviction takes place. The Tenant accepts that eviction proceedings may also be instigated after the rental period has expired, cf. the Enforcement Act §13-2, section three, litera b. Eviction according to the Enforcement Act § 13-2(tvangsloven), section three, litera c, can be sent directly to the enforcement officer(namsmannen) for effectuation.

9. Special term

! If the property is rented «as is», it means that the Tenant assumes much of the risk of latent defects to the property. If the Tenant finds defects after entering into the agreement, the defect does not normally constitute a breach of contract unless the Lessor has provided incorrect or insufficient information about the defect, or if the property is in a substantially worse condition than the Tenant had reason to expect when taking the rental price and other circumstances into account.
